Log Home Builders Travel Great Distances To Attend Annual Kuhns Bros. Advanced Builders Workshop

Lewisburg, PA – On February 9th, 2008 Kuhns Bros. Log Homes held their Annual Advanced Builders Workshop at its main headquarters in Lewisburg, PA. Kuhns Bros. has held builders workshops since 1999 and this year’s event attracted over 40 experienced log home builders. They came from as far away as Washington State, Kentucky, Michigan & North Carolina.

Kuhns Bros. has always put a priority on educating both the log home consumer and builder about the ever evolving world of log homes. The Advanced Builders Workshop provides an opportunity for Kuhns Bros. to educate and update a network of experienced log home builders on the enhancements of a Kuhns Bros. Log Home. The day’s agenda included a tour of the Kuhns Bros. Pro Hardware/Surplus Outlet, and “Log House Railings, inc.” provided demonstrations of installation techniques for new round rafter roof systems, half round log stair systems, and round railings. A presentation was also provided by Sashco, a manufacturer of log home preservatives and sealants, on its exterior preservative. The Kuhns Bros. Engineering and Technical Departments wrapped up the day by introducing changes to their construction manual and practices along with engaging the builders in a variety of construction topics.

“We are very pleased with the number of builders that joined us for this one day workshop, and we found their optimism related to the overall state of the construction industry very refreshing,” says Lynda Tompkins, Kuhns Bros. Director of Engineering, “their continued interest in the log home market, willingness to participate, exchange challenges and ideas was a very positive focal point for all involved.”

For more information about future educational opportunities please contact Kuhns Bros. at 1-800-326-9614 or visit the website workshop page at <http://www.kuhnsbros.com/discover>.
